

The following points should be taken into consideration when looking into improvements to the hastily introduced rate assessment policy.

It seems simple to add the rates to the annual income tax . Those who are earning should pay for the old, infirmed and weaker members of society.

Disability relief should be granted to the blind and mentally affected.

Single occupancy should be recognised.

The capital value system is unfair as the valuations have not been applied with an even hand through out the council areas.

Rate relief for students should be given to the individual people involved.
